Ponca Tribe Health Clinic Receives Award for Diabetes Care Program

Dr Lou Ann McStay, Medical Director for the Ponca Tribe of Nebraska's Fred LeRoy Health & Wellness Center with UniNet Certificate of Excellence.

The Ponca Fred LeRoy Health and Wellness Center Diabetes Program has been recognized for excellence in quality care by the UniNet Healthcare Network. UniNet Healthcare Network uninet.com is an umbrella organization clinically integrating medical care providers by promoting superior quality, safety and efficiency for communities. The organization unites providers through education, disease management, performance review, delegated credentialing and contracting.

Dr. Lou Ann McStay, Medical Director, and the clinic staff exceeded UniNet quality measures in diabetic care which includes the monitoring and healthy control of cholesterol, glucose and blood pressure levels as well as regular eye and foot exams. The clinic has received this award for two consecutive quarters.

The Fred LeRoy Health and Wellness Center is located at 2602 "J" Street in Omaha, NE and serves all registered members of federally recognized American Indian tribes.

The Ponca Tribe of Nebraska is dedicated to the preservation of personal rights, the promotion of peace, prosperity, happiness, and the general welfare of the citizens of our Tribe. To this end we strive to preserve our culture, improve the social order, protect individual rights, promote business enterprise, and foster educational opportunities.
